Emergency One is now offering serological testing for COVID-19. The tests are intended for individuals who may have had COVID-19 symptoms but are no longer symptomatic.

If you have been diagnosed with COVID-19 or had symptoms consistent with COVID-19 and have recovered for more than 10 days, this test may be able to detect the presence of antibodies indicating an immune response to a past COVID-19 infection.

The test uses blood samples to determine if the individual may have produced an immune response to the SARS-CoV-2 virus.

If you are interested in receiving an antibody test because of a past illness, or just to see if you have developed an immune response to the SARS-CoV-2 virus, please visit any of our Emergency One locations to be tested or get in line, online at www.eoneurgentcare.com.
